ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION*Adopted: July 16, 1999Released: August 2, 1999

By the Commission:

I. DISCUSSION

1. On our own motion, pursuant to 47 C.F.R. § 1.108, we issue this limited reconsideration of our rule regarding obligations placed upon carriers to maintain secure and accurate records of wiretap, pen register and trap and trace interceptions. The rule is among the systems security and integrity rules for telecommunications carriers to follow in complying with the Communications Assistance for Law Enforcement Act (CALEA or the Act) adopted by the Commission in our Report and Order implementing section 105 of the Act released on March 15, 1999 (Order).<sup>1</sup>

2. In Appendix A of the Order, subsection (a) of new Section 64.2104 set forth carrier recordkeeping requirements concerning interceptions, while subsection (b) established record retention periods of ten years for call-identifying information and unauthorized interceptions, including the content of such interceptions, and a carrier-determined "reasonable" period for the call content of authorized interceptions.<sup>2</sup>

3. After release of the Order and prior to publication of the rules in the Federal Register, the Commission received letters from the CTIA and AirTouch stating that section 64.2104(b) of our new rules erroneously requires carriers to retain records of call-identifying information and unauthorized interceptions, including the content of such interceptions, and erroneously requires carriers to retain records of content of authorized interceptions.<sup>3</sup> Subsequently, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) sent the Commission a letter supporting the position taken by CTIA and AirTouch on this issue, stating that those requirements "are not mandated by § 105 and that, in some respects, compliance with these requirements could cause a carrier to violate federal electronic surveillance laws," since those laws do not require or entitle carriers to acquire and retain such information, but merely direct them, according to lawful court orders and other authorizations, to provide the technical assistance necessary to aid law enforcement in making intercepts.<sup>4</sup>

4. We no longer find that telecommunications carriers should retain the content or call-identifying information of any interceptions of communications. Moreover, we no longer find the 10 year record retention requirement to be necessary, since it was originally implemented in order to remain consistent with the record retention requirement in 18 U.S.C. § 2518(8)(a) with regard to content of authorized call intercepts. Since we are no longer requiring carriers to maintain records of content or call-identifying information, we find it more appropriate to allow carriers to maintain the certification, as described in subsection (a), for a "reasonable period of time". Thus, we are making conforming changes in section 64.2103(f) and 64.2104(b) of our rules.

5. Upon further review of the record retention issue, therefore, we hereby modify the rules expressed in subsection (f) of new Section 64.2103 and subsection (b) of new Section 64.2104, as they appear in Appendix A to our Order, and replace them with a revised final section 64.2103(f) and 64.2104(b) of our rules, as set forth in the Appendix attached hereto.

APPENDIX B

SUPPLEMENTAL FINAL REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ANALYSIS

1. As required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA),<sup>5</sup> an Initial Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (IRFA) was incorporated in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in this proceeding implementing the Communications Assistance for Law Enforcement Act (CALEA or the Act).<sup>6</sup> The Commission sought written public comment on the proposals in the NPRM, including the IRFA. A Final Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (FRFA) conforming to the RFA was then incorporated in Appendix B of the Report and Order implementing section 105 of the Act released on March 15, 1999 (Order) in this proceeding.<sup>7</sup> The Commission's Supplemental Final Regulatory Flexibility Analysis (Supplemental FRFA) in this Order on Reconsideration (Reconsideration) reflects revised or additional information to that contained in the FRFA. The Supplemental FRFA is thus limited to matters raised in response to the Order and addressed in this Reconsideration. This Supplemental FRFA conforms to the RFA.<sup>8</sup>

(a) Need for and Purpose of this Action

2. The actions taken in this Reconsideration are in response to letters requesting clarification of the rules that erroneously require carriers to retain call-identifying information and unauthorized interceptions, including the content of such interceptions, as well as records of the content of authorized interceptions, which were adopted in the Order. The limited revisions made in the Reconsideration are intended to clarify the rules adopted in the Order by eliminating these erroneous requirements.

(b) Summary of the Issues Raised by Public Comments Made in Response to the FRFA

3. No comments were received in direct response to the FRFA, but the Commission received several letters requesting clarification of the rules adopted in the Order. After release of the Order, but prior to publication of the rules in the Federal Register, the

Commission received letters from CTIA and AirTouch stating that section 64.2104(b) of our new rules erroneously requires carriers to retain records of call-identifying information and unauthorized interceptions, including the content of such interceptions, and erroneously requires carriers to retain records of content of authorized interceptions.<sup>9</sup> Subsequently, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) sent the Commission a letter supporting the position taken by CTIA and AirTouch on this issue, stating that those requirements "are not mandated by § 105 and that, in some respects, compliance with these requirements could cause a carrier to violate federal electronic surveillance laws," since those laws do not require or entitle carriers to acquire and retain such information, but merely direct them, according to lawful court orders and other authorizations, to provide the technical assistance necessary to aid law enforcement in making intercepts.<sup>10</sup>

(c) Description and Estimates of the Number of Entities Affected by This Report and Order

4. As noted above, a Final Regulatory Flexibility Analysis was incorporated into the Order. In that analysis, we described in detail the small entities that might be significantly affected by the rules adopted in the Order.<sup>11</sup> Those entities may be found in a number of wireless services including: telephone companies, wireline carriers and service providers, local exchange carriers, interexchange carriers, competitive access providers, wireless radiotelephone carriers, cellular licensees, mobile service carriers, broadband personal communications service, SMR licensees, resellers, pay telephone operators, cable services or systems, and other pay services. In this Reconsideration, we hereby incorporate by reference the description and estimate of the number of small entities from the previous FRFA in this proceeding.

5. The rule changes in this Reconsideration will affect small entities as indicated in the FRFA presented in the Order. To the extent that a rule change here affects a particular wireless service, our estimates, contained in paragraphs 71-89 of the Order, remain valid as to the size of those services.<sup>12</sup>

(d) Description of Projected Reporting, Recordkeeping and Other Compliance Requirements.

<sup>10</sup> See FBI letter at 1-2; see CTIA letter at 2.

6. In this Reconsideration, we adopt no new rules and we impose no additional reporting, recordkeeping or other compliance requirements. We do, however, adopt specific rule changes clarifying that we no longer find telecommunications carriers should retain the content or call-identifying information of any interceptions of communications. Moreover, we no longer find the 10 year record retention requirement to be necessary, since it was originally implemented in order to remain consistent with the record retention requirement in 18 U.S.C. § 2518(8)(a) with regard to content of authorized call intercepts. Since we are no longer requiring carriers to maintain records of content or call-identifying information, we find it more appropriate to allow carriers to maintain the certification for a "reasonable period of time". Thus, we are making conforming changes in section 64.2103(f) and 64.2104(b) of our rules by modifying the rules expressed in subsection (f) of new Section 64.2103 and subsection (b) of new Section 64.2104, as they appear in Appendix A to our Order, and replace them with a revised final section 64.2103(f) and 64.2104(b) of our rules, as set forth in the Appendix attached to the Reconsideration.

(e) Steps Taken to Minimize Significant Economic Impact on Small Entities, and Significant Alternatives Considered.

7. The analysis of the Commission's efforts to minimize the possible significant economic impact on small entities as described in the FRFA, is unchanged by the Reconsideration, save that the removal of the recordkeeping obligations described in section (d) above will result in a reduction of the recordkeeping burden for all entities affected by the Order and this Reconsideration.

(f) Report to Congress

8. The Commission shall send a copy of this Reconsideration, including this Supplemental FRFA, in a report to Congress pursuant to the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act of 1996, see 5 U.S.C. § 801(a)(1)(A). In addition, the Commission shall send a copy of this Reconsideration, including this Supplemental FRFA, to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration. A copy of this Reconsideration and Supplemental FRFA (or summaries thereof) will also be published in the Federal Register.
